MARIINSKY BALLET & ORCHESTRA
OPENS CAL PERFORMANCES' 2012–2013 DANCE SEASON WITH
SWAN LAKE
WEDNESDAY–FRIDAY, OCTOBER 10–14 IN ZELLERBACH HALL

Sightlines: A pre-performance talk will be given on Friday and Saturday evenings, October 12 and 13, at 7:00 p.m.

BERKELEY, September 11, 2012—Russia's acclaimed Mariinsky Ballet & Orchestra (formerly the Kirov) comes to Berkeley with six performances of Swan Lake in Zellerbach Hall from Wednesday–Sunday, October 10–14. The company brings a production created for them by legendary choreographers Marius Petipa and Lev Ivanov in 1895, and revised by Konstantin Sergeyev in 1950. Sergeyev famously tweaked the ballet's ending, adding a Soviet-style twist that softens the tragedy of Petipa and Ivanov's version, while retaining the purity of the Imperial Russian style of dancing for which the company was, and still is, famous. The company includes artist Ekaterina Kondourova, "the queen of the Kirov's contemporary repertoire [and] a radical presence in the classics" (Pointe Magazine), rotating in the role of Odette/Odile. The 65-piece Mariinsky Orchestra, under the baton of Mikhail Agrest, will play the soaring musical score by Pyotr Ilyich Tchaikovsky. "This is a sublime account of the world's best-loved ballet" (Guardian, UK).

Dancing Odette/Odile will be Kondourova (October 10, October 13 matinee), Anastasia Kolegova (October 11 and 14), Alina Somova (October 13 evening) and Victroria Tereshkina (October 12). Rotating in the role of Prince Siegfried, the Mariinsky Ballet will feature Yevgeny Ivanchenko (October 11), Danila Korsuntsev (October 10, October 13 matinee), Vladimir Schklyarov (October 12), Alexander Sergeev (October 13 evening) and Maxim Zuzin (October 14). While all eyes will be on the company's principal dancers, the Guardian (UK) reminded viewers of the Mariinsky Ballet's "... peerless ranks of swans. Every back has the same soft-swept arch, every arm the same airy line from shoulder to fingertip, every neck is identically poised, every gaze parallel. The effect is ravishing.”

A Sightlines pre-performance talk, moderated by dance specialist Kathryn Roszack and featuring a special guest, will be given on Friday and Saturday evenings, October 12 and 13, at 7:00 p.m. in Zellerbach Hall. This event is free to Swan Lake ticketholders.

The Mariinsky Ballet has roots in 19th century Imperial Russian Ballet. In 1889 the company established its home in St. Petersburg’s Mariinsky Theatre and under the leadership of choreographer Marius Petipa premiered many beloved Tchaikovsky ballets including Sleeping Beauty, The Nutcracker and Swan Lake. Other major works premiered by the company include Schéhérazade (music by Rimsky-Korsakov), The Firebird and Pétrouchka (music by Igor Stravinsky). The Russian Revolution and two World Wars proved trying for the company, but from the 1950s through the 1970s the company reemerged from those dark days with famed modern ballets including Aram Khachaturian’s Spartacus, Boris Tishchenko’s Twelve (choreography by Leonid Yakobson) and Sergei Prokofiev’s The Stone Flower, along with diligently curated productions of works from the corps’ classical legacy. Throughout its history, the company has been home to many of the world’s most renowned ballet choreographers and dancers, including Anna Pavlova, Vaslav Nijinsky, Marina Semenova, Yury Grigorovich, Rudolph Nureyev and Mikhail Baryshnikov.

The Mariinsky Orchestra was founded in the 1700s, during the reign of Peter the Great. From 1863 to 1916 the orchestra blossomed under the musical direction of Eduard Napravnik, who developed what became known as the “Russian school” of conducting. He trained a generation of conductors and led premieres of operas by Mussorgsky, Tchaikovsky, Rimsky-Korsakov and other Russian composers. Though it has changed names many times, the orchestra remains one of Russia’s leading cultural institutions and a top global symphony orchestra. Maestro Valery Gergiev has been the orchestra’s chief conductor since 1988 and serves as Artistic and General Director of the Mariinsky Theatre. A longtime friend of Cal Performances, he was most recently seen in Berkeley in 2011 leading the Mariinsky Orchestra’s residency that featured performances of Tchaikovsky’s six symphonies.
